“ How do you share memories of someone you knew for most of your adult life? How do you share memories of someone who was hysterically funny, wonderfully creative and talented, and who overcame challenges with resolve whenever things got tough? How do you share memories of someone, unbeknown to most, who threw his life down for others in a fetid jungle on the other side of the sea? How do you describe someone who did all these things, and was still a wonderful husband, amazing friend; and a silent, decorated war hero? You can't. You simply pray for him- that he left this earth with godspeed and fell into the arms of the One waiting for him. We love you Don, and we will miss you with everything we have until we see you again. It's a so much lonelier place down here without you.
