“ Twenty years ago, when I first started playing in golf tournaments, Francis and I were paired together and I thought, after we were done, how lucky I was to have made a friend after the end of the round. She made me feel at ease and showed me the "ropes" of playing in a tournament. Over the years we would see each other at different golfing events and share jokes and enjoy a beer. I will miss her.

“ Frances was definately one of a kind and a remarkable woman. It was our good fortune to have her in our midst for many years.

Personally, I learned many things from her. Her perserverance and the ability to take care of yourself. To say that she was independant and stubborn would be putting it mildly. I admired those qualities among others.

Frances will be missed greatly.
