“*Brother, I close my eyes, and you are not gone.
I can see the shenanigans in your loving dark eyes.
I can hear your infectious laughter.
I remember how you would hug me so tightly.
I remember Daddy asking me what I thought of naming you Lyle.
My 7 year old mind thought it was weird, but Daddy said he liked it.
When we got to bring you home from the hospital, you were so tiny,
I couldn't even hold you, Peanut.
I see you in your hospital bed, with your leg in traction, spitting Jello through your straw, trying to hit the holes in the ceiling.
I see you fishing in the mountains and jumping from rock to rock so fearlessly. I remember you rescuing Lorrie and Leslie and know how different our lives could have been had you not been there.*

*I hear you calling Lorrie, skinny scrawny chicken legs and Melody, deedee dobber slobbers and realize that you didn't give Chance a name because you were too busy giving him chocolate and handing him back to me to clean up. Somewhere, in my mind, I think you were the 1st to call me Bertha Butt, but I won't hold that against you.
I remember how happy & proud you were when Susan was born and how you would light up when you talked about her.*

I remember sharing the pain of losing Andre and Franklin and wishing I could make that pain go away. I am glad that my kids and my nieces and nephews had you for their uncle. You loved them all so fiercely.

*I pray you know how much I love you, and now, Brother, I must open my eyes until we meet again, and I can get another tight hug.
Sissy*
